PROFILE

I'm Nick, a creative, commercially focused senior leader who looks for problems before they become problems. I hit the ground running, energise teams and come at challenges from all sides, connecting brand, customer, product, people and performance to find better ways forward. With 14+ years' experience growing premium consumer goods, luxury jewellery and lifestyle retail brands across retail, wholesale, travel retail, eCommerce and international partnerships, I bring strategic thinking, hands-on delivery and a strong instinct for what makes brands work.

I've led multidisciplinary field teams, carried £3m+ revenue accountability and supported 200+ UK & Ireland points of sale, translating storytelling, training and premium customer experience into measurable growth. Naturally curious and future-focused, I embrace new ways of working, innovation and continuous iteration. I value diversity of thought, welcome being challenged, and actively seek opposing opinions to make sure the right path is chosen for business growth. Creativity is central to my leadership style: I build momentum, bring fresh thinking and help teams turn ambitious brand direction into confident local execution.

Data and evidence-driven

Ethical and responsible sales approach

I build credibility through transparency, act with integrity and keep the customer and brand at the heart of every decision I make.

Long-term partnership mentality

I invest in strong relationships, focus on mutual growth and create value that lasts beyond immediate results. Short-term wins never come at the cost of long-term trust.

Lead by example

I lead by setting the standard, supporting my team and championing their successes. Clear expectations and a willingness to listen create the best outcomes.

Proactive, not reactive

I look ahead, identify risks early and act decisively to prevent issues before they grow. I find problems before they become problems.
